

MORE AMERICANS KILLED BY BANDITS SAY REPORTS; CARRANZA READY TO ACT

OFFICIAL REPORT SAYS ANOTHER AMERICAN IS SLAIN—UNCONFIRMED RUMOR SAYS TEN ARE DEAD.

WORK OF VILLA'S AIDS

Two of Chieftain's Colonels Are Said to Be Responsible for Monday's Wholesale Slaughter—Bodies at El Paso.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Elizée Arrascaeta, General Carranza's ambassador here, delivered to Secretary Lansing today a letter saying he "deeply regrets" the dastardly action of Villa's forces, and giving assurances that the Carranza government will act at once to remedy the situation.

El Paso, Jan. 13.—A report was current in Chihuahua that ten American men and two English women had been killed by Villa troops at Medeira, Chihuahua, according to Americans arriving here early today with the bodies of eighteen Americans killed last Monday.

The report, however, couldn't be confirmed. One of the women reported to be killed was said to be the wife of Captain Jack Leftbridge, retired British army officer, who with an English woman companion, a Mrs. Henry, had been staying at Babicora ranch, the Herra property.

General Jose Rodriguez has been captured near Madera, Chihuahua, by Americans, according to reports received here. Messages received from Madera stated a number of Rodriguez's men were killed and Americans are taking for help.

Mexican officials were unable to confirm the report that ten Americans and two English women had been murdered at Madera. They said troops were being dispatched to that place.

Bodies Reach El Paso. The bodies of eighteen Americans, killed last Monday by Mexican bandits near Santa Ysabel, western Chihuahua, reached El Paso early today and were taken in charge by undertakers for shipment to relatives in various parts of the country. The body of Joseph J. Jones, reported to have been killed, was not among those arriving today.

Benjamin Smith, secretary of the Mining and Smeltermen's association of Chihuahua, who organized the party that recovered the bodies, said that the heads were almost blown off. They were stripped of clothing before being dragged out of the cave and killed," said Stephenson. "When we arrived at the scene of the massacre a Carranza force remained at Santa Ysabel where they found a number of bandits encamped. We returned to the troop train to get a machine gun and then proceeded to the place where the bodies were buried."

Fear Two Others Killed. An expedition which left Chihuahua today to recover the bodies of the two men reported to have been killed by bandits, was informed by Benjamin Smith and other sources here that the two men were reported to have been killed by bandits. The two men were reported to have been killed by bandits. The two men were reported to have been killed by bandits.

Thomas D. Edwards, American consul at Juarez, was received with shouts of derision when he appeared in the lobby of the local hotel filled with Americans. "You cannot intimidate me," Edwards calmly told the miners, and turned his back he strode from the lobby.

A plan to form a regiment of American mining men to fight the bandits was formulated here last night, it was learned today. It was decided to present the plan to officials of the department of mining, and to the United States government.

Authorities in Chihuahua have prepared for special trains to bring Americans out of the district at shortest possible notice. Some two hundred foreigners are in the district.

No Truth in Rumors. The Madera telegraph operator reported there was no truth in the rumor that Americans and two English women being killed at Madera. A rumor in circulation here today was to effect that three Americans had been murdered in the Cananea district of Sonora, in the vicinity of the Phelps-Dodge property. It could not be verified.

Another American Killed. Washington, Jan. 13.—No word of the reported killing of ten American men and two English women by Mexican bandits near Madera had reached the War Department early today.

The killing of Bert Kramer, an American, by Mexican bandits, was officially reported in dispatches to the War Department by Collector Cobb at El Paso. The collector reported that Kramer was killed near Madera, sixty miles west of Santa Ysabel. The dispatch was informed that the bandit who killed the party of Americans on Monday was commanded by two former Villa colonels—Lopez and Bet-

WHOLE NORTHWEST IN GRIP OF STORM; SUB-ZERO WEATHER

Janesville and Vicinity Shivers After Drop of Nearly Fifty Degrees in Temperature.

Prediction that a cold wave was on its way with a drop in temperature of from fifty to sixty degrees was verified within the past twenty-four hours when the thermometer dropped from forty above zero to twenty below in the coldest spot reported and averaging about seventeen to eighteen on other weather gauges.

Starting with cold rain the storm rapidly developed into a genuine blizzard that seriously hampered interurban and local street car service, delayed trains from the north and made foot travel exceedingly difficult. It was the first real cold of winter and indications are that it will remain with us for at least another twenty-four hours without much change in temperature.

Middle West Shivers. Chicago, Jan. 13.—The storm which began yesterday over the middle west continued today. Snow, high winds and low temperatures prevailed over Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin. From the Canadian northwest there also came reports of unusual low temperature, the thermometer at Prince Albert, Sask., going 53 below.

St. Paul reported thirty-three degrees below zero; Hannab, N. D., 52 below, and Des Moines, Ia., 22 below. Railroad traffic west of Chicago has been seriously delayed and in many instances trains abandoned. At Council Bluffs, Ia., more than twenty passenger trains are stalled, being unable to move in either direction. Telephone and telegraph communication with the west was practically shut off.

St. Paul, Jan. 13.—On anniversary of the memorable storm of 1888 St. Paul is experiencing the coldest weather of the season. The thermometer registered twenty-eight degrees below zero at 2 a. m. and had dropped to 31 below at 6 a. m. The one thing which has made this day so memorable is the fact that a blizzard of the 1888 storm was the last of its kind.

Although there was a fall of about seven inches yesterday, it was not a cause for widespread damage. The result was a day of cold and snow. At a north-west angle, ranging at thirty-five miles an hour increased the intensity of the cold last night, but aside from that little damage in the city. St. Paul road train from Seattle was eighteen hours late. The Seattle train on the Great Northwestern was sixteen hours late. The Seattle train on the Northern Pacific was eight hours late.

Flood Danger Passed. Cincinnati, O., Jan. 13.—The danger stage of fifty feet in the Ohio river, which was passed early today, and the river continued to fall at the rate of two inches an hour. At seven o'clock it registered 51.3. The river is about the city are inundated. Most of the cities along the Water and Front streets are flooded and the water made its appearance today on the streets of Newport, Ky., across the river from this city, but little damage has been done.

The continued rise is the result of heavy rains of late yesterday and according to the weather bureau, it will soon be checked.

Beloit, Jan. 13.—Records at the government weather bureau connected with Beloit College announce the temperature today as eighteen below.

Appleton, Jan. 13.—The government report showed seventeen below zero this morning, a drop from forty-three from seven o'clock last night.

RULING IS MADE ON TWO CENT FARE LAW

Attorney General Owen Advises Railroad Commission on Legislation As To Time Element.

Madison, Jan. 13.—Interpreting the law passed by 1913 session of legislature providing for two-cent passenger rate on railroads when the gross receipts of the road exceeds $3,500 per annum, Attorney General Owen today advised the railroad commission whether the law applied, is the year ending December 31st. A question was asked by the railroad commission whether the year ending June 30 or December 31, should be the measure.

LINER WILL RETAIN TWO MOUNTED GUNS

State Department Will Allow Italian Ship to Clear Port Without Making Changes.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The Italian liner Giuseppe Verdi, will be permitted to clear from New York with her two guns still mounted. The state department has given its assent with assurances that pieces are to be used only for defense and has no notified the treasury, which will instruct Collector Malone at New York.

PLAN TO SUBSIDIZE FRENCH SHIPOWNERS

French Government Proposes to Vote Aid as a Solution of Shipping Problem.

TELLS COUNTY BOARD OF MOTHERS' PENSION DISTRICT ATTORNEY DUNWIDDIE EXPLAINS FEATURES OF NEW TOWN AID TO MOTHERS.

Commissioner Moore Figures Expense Saved Will Warrant Purchase of Automobile.

Information relating to the new mothers' pension act this morning was given to the county board of supervisors by District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie. Several features of the new law were explained and it was pointed to the board. The supervisors went on record as favoring the presence of the town chairman when aid was requested by a mother from any of the various towns. The purpose of the district, it was thought advisable, to have present also.

Money paid by the county as mothers' pensions will be charged back to the towns from where the recipient lives.

Overpaid Taxes. La Prairie's desire to receive back from the county the sum of four hundred dollars, which had been paid in county treasury as the tax levy on a hundred thousand dollars worth of property they did not have, again this morning came before the board. The overpayment arises from the assessment case with the Rock County Beet Sugar company and the subsequent settlement agreed upon between the town and the county.

La Prairie's settlement with the county on the basis of having $100,000 more property than it really had, and is now after the return of the overpayment.

This morning the matter was postponed until this afternoon, when Supervisor R. K. Overton, who introduced the resolution, was to present to the board the proposition that the amount sought was the same as the overpayment. The resolution was scheduled for passage by the board.

Recommendations were made to the board by County Highway Commissioner Charles E. Moore for road work for the coming season. Among various things recommended was the purchase of a motor truck for the use of the county highway department.

Mr. Moore contended that the agricultural and business use of the use of teams and wagons would warrant its being secured. On motion of Supervisor Richardson, the road committee elected a resolution was instructed to investigate the advisability of the truck purchase and, if they deemed it necessary, to make the purchase as soon as possible.

Supervisor Simon Smith of Beloit, chairman of the salary committee, gave his report. That of the county treasurer raised from $1,200 to $1,350. The various items of the treasurer for deficits which heretofore have been paid by the county.

Commissioner of Conservation, Charles E. Moore, yesterday afternoon occupied the greater portion of the session delivering his report to the board. The paper was exhaustive and covered every phase of the work done in the county during the past year. It was accepted by the supervisors.

Supervisor Joseph A. Denning offered a resolution of thanks to the Beloit Business Men's association for their offer of financial help and assistance in the county agricultural agent which was voted upon favorably by the board.

A special committee, appointed at the November meeting to inquire into the matter of employing convicts in the construction of the new bridge, reported adversely to the proposition and upon their recommendation the board voted against the use of the prisoners.

The reports of several committees were read and accepted by the board.

TWO TRAINS CLASH CAUSING BAD WRECK

Fourteen Injured When Chicago Train Runs Into Rear End of Madison Train at West Allis.

Milwaukee, Jan. 13.—Four men were seriously injured and three others were badly cut and bruised today when a Chicago train and a Madison train crashed into the rear end of a Madison bound train near West Allis station one mile west of here. The engine of the Chicago train plowed half way through the parlor car of the Madison train.

The seriously injured: H. J. Prange, Sheboygan; A. R. Bowler, Sheboygan; F. J. Doring, Danbury, Conn.; R. H. Norris, insurance agent, Milwaukee. On account of the severe cold rescue work was difficult and employees from neighboring business places and doctors assisted in the rescue.

The Madison train left the North-western station at 10:15 a. m. and followed by the Chicago train, which left five minutes later. As the Chicago train was pulling into Allis station, according to witnesses, it crashed into the rear of the Madison train and telescoped it. There were fifteen passengers in the rear coach of the Madison train.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR OPENS PARLIAMENT; TELLS OF VICTORIES

Germany Has Sustained Nation and Armies Despite Crippled Trade, Hollweg Declares.

Berlin, Jan. 13. Wireless to Sayville.—After divine services in the Protestant Cathedral and in the Catholic church of St. Hedwig, Dr. Von Bethman-Hollweg, the Prussian prime minister, opened today the new session of the Prussian parliament.

Speaking today of the opening of the Prussian parliament, Dr. Von Bethman-Hollweg, the premier, said Germany's enemies had planned to demoralize her by cutting her off from the trans-Atlantic world, but this had failed. He added:

"Our agriculture assures the sustenance of the nation relying on our strength, our industries and our trade can produce what we need for our defense. These maintain the millions of workers who have remained at home and they maintain our economic life in spite of the war. But above all things we are proud of our nation's arms, armed with ineffable grandeur and heroism."

Dr. Von Bethman-Hollweg insisted on the fact that Germany together with her faithful allies had resisted a world of enemies, but carried her flag into the enemies' countries. He continued:

"We are, and always will be proud, together with our German brethren, that the old Prussian spirit has shown its impetuous vitality and has added new immortal glory to heroic deeds of our fathers and ancestors."

Together with our King and Emperor we march toward the turning of the road sure of victory. One though fills us—to give all until the very last depths of the nation's tower for life and safety of the nation."

FRENCH SEIZE VILLA OF KAISER AT CORFU

Palace on Greek Island Purchased by German Emperor in 1907, Now in Hands of French Soldiers.

London, Jan. 13.—A French detachment has been landed on the Greek island of Corfu for provisional occupation, says an Athens dispatch to Reuters.

The French soldiers occupied the Achilleion, on which the French flag was hoisted. The Achilleion was erected in 1890 for Empress Elizabeth of Austria. The villa was purchased in 1907 by the German emperor.

It is understood the French landing is preparatory to the transfer of a portion of the Serbian army for rest and refitting.

A protest against the occupation of Corfu is being formulated by the Greek cabinet. This is expected to be more energetic than previous protests sent to the entente powers regarding the occupation of other Greek islands.

By cannonading was heard during the day from the direction of Dorian, across the northern Greek border, says a Havas dispatch from Athens under Tuesday's date.

DEAL A HEAVY BLOW TO CHINESE REBELS

Revolutionaries in Various Provinces Subdued in Bloody Battles Says Report Reaching London.

London, Jan. 13.—Many Chinese revolutionaries were killed and captured in a series of bloody engagements on Jan. 6, 7 and 8 in the districts of Tamsui, Potung, Yentzuwo and Tokio, according to information received from the Canton government. The British authorities at Hong Kong and forwarded by Reuters the Hong Kong correspondent.

The Hong Kong dispatch says the rebels were well supplied with arms, munitions and military uniforms. They fought until their ammunition was exhausted when they continued to struggle with bombs. Ultimately the revolutionaries were routed and many of them taken prisoner. The government forces also captured munitions and horses. Various garrisons are engaged in following trains left by the rebels who escaped with the object of exterminating them.

BOMB THROWERS AIM MISSILES AT OKUMA WHO ESCAPES HARM

Assassins Hurl Two Bombs at Japanese Premier, but He Was Leaving Royal Palace.

Tokio, Jan. 13.—Count Okuma, the Japanese premier, had a narrow escape from death early today at the hands of assassins. He was returning from the royal palace shortly after midnight. As he was approaching his residence, two bombs were hurled at his automobile. The premier was not injured.

Okuma's chauffeur caught a glimpse of the bomb thrower, as he was about to launch his missile, and put on speed so that the bomb exploded behind the machine without causing damage. A second bomb was thrown but it failed to explode.

Count Okuma made another visit to the palace at 11 o'clock this morning. The exploded bomb is being examined. The assassins or assassin escaped.

NEW SPLIT MENACES PILGRIMS OF PEACE

Scandinavian Demand for 'No Annexation Plan' Threatens to Divide Ford's Delegation.

The Hague, Jan. 13.—On the eve of the selection of delegates to an unofficial neutral conference, to get the boys out of the trenches, the Ford party is threatened with another fight, caused by the insistence of the Scandinavian delegates that no "annexation" be made an absolute condition of the peace proposals to be discussed.

Louis P. Lochner of Chicago, remembering the fight on the Oscar II, which followed previous proposals for a definite program, has attached to this one. He assured the Scandinavians that while the desire of the leaders was not to bind anybody, the American members would elect no delegates who were not opposed to annexation.

Assurance Not Sufficient. This assurance, however, was apparently insufficient, for Franklon Lochner of Norway is leading a movement of the Scandinavians to draw up a platform including this plank: "The delegates to the conference are five pro tempore delegates to sit in the absence of any foreign members. W. J. Bryan, Jane Addams and Henry Ford are certain to be chosen, and it is expected that another delegate will be Judge Ben Lindsey."

No Swiss Delegates. Mr. Lochner now admits that there is no chance of getting delegations from Spain and Switzerland on account of the difficulties of travel. It is uncertain what support the pilgrims will receive in Holland. The A. V. V. Council, one of the leading peace societies here, has been approached by Mr. Lochner, but is cautious on account of the unrepresentative character of the Ford party.

Half of Passengers on One Vessel Lose Lives in Disaster in Adriatic Sea.

Rome, Jan. 13.—Two Italian steamships, the Brindisi and the Citta di Palermo, have been sunk by mines in the Adriatic Sea.

Half of 11 passengers on the Brindisi were lost. The crew was saved. Nearly all on the Citta di Palermo, which was an armed vessel, were saved.

The Brindisi was sunk Jan. 6 and the Citta di Palermo Jan. 8. The former was a vessel of 863 tons and was owned at Bari.

The Citta di Palermo was built in 1910 and was 2,415 tons. She was a turbine vessel and owned by the Italian State Railway of Palermo. Another vessel of the same name is owned by F. Becker of Messina. This craft sailed from Galveston Jan. 4 for Barcelona.

AWAIT GERMAN NOTE ON BARALONG CASE

Publication of German Allegations Against British Patrol Boat Crew Expected Today.

London, Jan. 13.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company learned that publication of German's note concerning the Baralong case is expected today. The British patrol boat Baralong was on a German submarine while she was shelling the British steamer Nicolson, off the coast of Ireland, on August 13, 1915. Germany alleged that after sinking the submarine the crew of the Baralong murdered the members of the crew. Germany's protest was made through Secretary Lansing and Ambassador Page at London.

GERMANS TO START DRIVE ON SALONKI

TEUTONS ARE DEVELOPING PLANS FOR ATTACK ON EN-TENTE FORCES ON A LARGE SCALE.

MONTENEGRINS LOSING

Prepare to Evacuate Cetinje as Austrians Continue to Advance—Russ Town Near Czernowitz.

Rome, via Paris, Jan. 11.—The attack of the Teutonic allies on the entente forces defending Saloniki is being developed on a large scale, according to Athens correspondent of the Giomile d'Italia, telegraphing under Tuesday's date. He reports that a bombardment of the British line to the Doiran Zone proceeded all day Monday.

To Evacuate Cetinje. Paris, Jan. 13.—In view of success of the Austrians against Mount Lovcen, Montenegro, measures have been taken by the Montenegrin government to evacuate Cetinje immediately, according to a Scutari dispatch, says the Petit Journal's Milan correspondent. The government, however, has decided to continue the struggle against the Austrians, the dispatch adds.

Austrian forces advancing from Cattaro and Budva have reached Mitchev, five miles from Antivari, which is being bombarded by the Austrian long range guns, according to a dispatch to L'Ouvre, under Tuesday's date. The correspondent telegraphing from Scutari says that the Montenegrins, aided by Serbians, are making a stout resistance, although outnumbered five to one.

Russians Take Sadjura. London, Jan. 13.—The news from the eastern front of the Russian capture of Sadjura is regarded in military circles as probably true, although official announcement of the subject has not been received. The village lies a few miles northeast of Czernowitz, and is a converging point for five good roads, is of considerable strategic importance and previous attempts to capture it have been stoutly resisted. Experts say Sadjura is really of more importance than Czernowitz on account of its stronger natural position and facilities for communication purposes.

Slav Offensive Suspended. The reports from Petrograd say the offensive in Galicia and Bessarabia, which the Russian government has regarded as at least premature, is suspended suddenly, as it was undertaken after a careful preparation and launched with unexpected strength. The subject of the offensive is said to be three-fold in order to demonstrate to the Rumanians that the Russian forces are able to assume the initiative when they choose to divert Austro-German forces from the Balkan and western fronts, and to improve the general strategic position of their own flank. While the full effects of this Russian offensive cannot be determined, military experts affirm that the second object was attained. The situation in the Balkans was sensibly relieved and the Russian offensive undertaken by the Germans against the French in Champagne was robbed of its force.

Greeks in Protest. The fact that the French flag is now flying from the palace on the island of Corfu, which belongs to the German emperor, and that the occupation of the Greek island by the entente is considered as complete, has, it is felt, evoked a protest from the Greek government. It is said that the protest is largely formal and that the allies have given Greece guarantees regarding their intention of preventing the German army risking the danger of starvation.

The German offensive in Champagne which reached its culmination Saturday is insistently reported from French headquarters as having been undertaken on an important scale and with a definite military purpose. The failure is declared to have been complete and the strong German forces which were employed suffered terrible losses.

The Austrian forces are steadily developing their campaign in Montenegro and military experts believe the fall of Cetinje is possible in the near future.

Starving at Scutari. Paris, Jan. 13.—A Scutari telegram to the Serbian legation in Rome described the situation at Scutari as approaching desperation. Food is lacking to feed thousands of women, children and refugees from Serbia, the letter arriving in large numbers, swelling the refugee colony already established. The new arrivals add to the message, are obliged to sleep in the open air in bitter cold. It declares hundreds are dying daily in the streets of cold and hunger and nearly all the young children have died from lack of nourishment.

Madison, Jan. 13.—H. H. Morgan, republican county chairman, has issued a call for a meeting of republicans here in this county on January 20th to take up the matter of the election of delegates to the convention to be held at the gymnasium January 27.

Getting What They Want

REFUSES CLEMENCY

TO EDWARD MEYER

Gov. Philipp Declines Leniency in Case of Janesville Youth Serving Prison Term.

Gov. E. L. Philipp on Wednesday refused executive clemency to Edward Meyer of this city, who is serving a term in the state prison at Joliet for the murder of William H. Meyer, sentenced by Judge Grimm in 1912 following conviction for rape and third degree murder. Attorney Thomas S. Nolan intervened in Meyer's behalf before the governor yesterday. District Attorney Dunwiddie appeared for the state.

The governor commuted the sentence of Ignazio Giugrasso of Milwaukee, who is serving a sentence of twenty-five years in the state prison for murder, to a term of fifteen years. Giugrasso pleaded guilty to a charge of murder in the second degree. The governor had not pleaded guilty he would probably have been convicted of murder in a lesser degree. Giugrasso has served five years.

The governor commuted the sentence of Hugh Sorenson of Frederic, Polk county, who three years ago was convicted of shooting and killing his mistress, Emma Hamilton, in a drunken rage, and sentenced to life imprisonment, to a term of fourteen years. Sorenson pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree.

The term of Ernest Mitchell of Appleton, who is serving five years in prison for forgery, was commuted to two years. Mitchell was sentenced in November, 1914.

The governor refused to extend executive clemency in the cases of Joseph Kosh of Milwaukee, sentenced last March to a term of two years in the house of correction for false swearing, and Peter Vancatter of Milwaukee, sentenced last August at Waukesha until he reaches 21 years of age, for incorrigibility.

CHANGES IN FEDERAL LIQUOR LAWS URGED

Temperance Speaker Favors Amendments to Interstate Commerce Act.

J. L. Sizer of Milwaukee, a temperance lecturer, delivered an address last evening at the Y. M. C. A., urging the importance of changes in the federal constitution, the interstate commerce act and other laws which effect the liquor traffic. He attacked particularly the interstate commerce law which allows liquor to be imported from outside of a dry state into territory where prohibition is enforced.

In opening he explained the grip that the liquor traffic holds upon the people of the country and the tremendous influence it exerts in politics. He also explained the detrimental effects upon the individual and the nation from an economical and physiological point of view. And in this connection he stated that every citizen should endeavor to interpret his relations to the age in which he lives while passing through this age and so use his influence as to be of benefit to his fellow citizens and the age.

The speaker showed the benefits that had been derived in certain parts of the country by closing the public houses and by dissolving the partnership locally between the state and the liquor traffic.

DISMISSES CHARGE AGAINST DR. GEO. FOX

Madison Court Holds Evidence Insufficient to Hold Janesville Physician for Trial.

Dr. George Fox of this city was freed of the charge of manslaughter by Acting Judge Carson in the Madison court at Madison Wednesday. The court ruled that the evidence offered to the jury was insufficient to sustain the charge of manslaughter. A physician caused the death of Mabel Swensen, a Stoughton girl, by a criminal operation was insufficient. The case was then dismissed.

ALEX. GALBRAITH LECTURES AT MANITOBA STOCK MEET

Alex. Galbraith, formerly of Janesville, now connected with the Alberta agricultural department, was one of the principal speakers last week at a meeting of Manitoba stockmen at Brandon. Mr. Galbraith, who is an expert draught breeder, lectured on the five draft breeds of horses, Percherons, Clydesdales, Belgians, Suffolk and Shires, and delved deep into the history of these breeds of heavy horses. A Manitoba paper, which gives an extended account of Mr. Galbraith's address, reports him as saying that the Clydesdales, which he himself was interested in breeding for many years, are the scum of all draft breeds. Within the last thirty years they had been improved as to legs and feet, but their body was not so good.

RELATIVE OF LOCAL MAN DIES ON MEXICAN RANCH

Word has been received of the death of I. E. Benson, formerly of Deerfield, Wis., and a cousin of Dickson of this city. Mr. Benson passed away on Tuesday at his ranch in Mexico. Mr. Benson was the owner of a ranch of 1,500 acres, south of Brownsville, Texas, and had spent most of his time for the past seventeen years in Mexico. He left Deerfield about a month ago at that time, but his death came as a surprise to his friends. Mr. Benson will be buried at Victoria, Mexico.

MISS MILLIE BIER WEDDED ADOLPH HONISCH WEDNESDAY

Miss Millie Bier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Bier, was united in marriage to Adolph Honisch yesterday morning at eight o'clock at the St. Mary's church. Rev. W. A. Gobel performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a blue suit and wore a hat of white velvet. The attendants were Miss Marie Goldbach and Emil Bier, brother of the bride. After the ceremony a three course breakfast was served at the home of the bride. The happy couple will be at their new home to their friends at 614 Locust street.

INSURANCE MEETING

AT MILWAUKEE JAN. 24

Company Representatives From All Sections of the Country Will Be Present.

Representative insurance men from every section of the state will meet in Milwaukee on January 24, to organize the Wisconsin Insurance Federation.

The federation will be state-wide in scope, with branches in every county. It will include every line of the business—fire, life, accident, health, casualty and surety—whether operating on a stock, mutual or fraternal basis.

The Wisconsin Federation will be modeled on those formed in many other states, where results have already exceeded all expectations. It will be affiliated with the national organization, and among the insurance leaders and federation officials who will address the Milwaukee meeting are: George D. C. Chicago, president of the National Council of Insurance Federation Executives; Mark T. McKee, Detroit, secretary-treasurer of the National Council; Wade Carter, Chicago, former president of the National Council and now chairman of the executive committee, and J. A. Morrison, Chicago.

The organization committee, which is headed by the preliminary committee, H. J. Zechlin, James B. Leonard, and Frank J. Meyer, of the Fire Insurance Field; H. B. Lasehe, Casualty Agent; John E. Baily, Life Insurance; Frank Passold, secretary of the Board of Milwaukee Board of Fire Underwriters; Adolph Pfund, Trade Mutuals; W. H. Griebner, City Mutuals; Alfred T. Griggs, New Holstein, Farm Mutuals; Charles F. Lamb, Madison, General Mutuals; and C. D. Marks, of the Suray Men.

The object of the new organization is a united field that will strengthen all and weaken none, and stimulate every activity that works for the greatest benefit to the business as a whole. It will furnish its members with information on the origin, nature and effect of all movements to undermine or weaken the soundness of the insurance business in any of its phases. Through its educational program it will work in the interest of the public and the protection of both insurer and insured. The call makes it plain that this federation is not seeking political power, nor special privileges, but the common good of both buyers and sellers of insurance.

The meeting on January 24 in Milwaukee will be held at 2 o'clock in the rooms of the Board of Fire Underwriters, Mitchell building, and Wisconsin insurance men from every field are invited to attend.

LAND CONTEST IS MOST INTERESTING

W. J. Hill, Jr., Seeks Valuable Tract in the Great Falls, Montana, Region—Case Before Commissioners.

The contest over a hundred and sixty acres of land, located two miles north of Stump, in which William Hill, Jr. is interested, promises to become of nation wide interest. The cost per acre for witness fees alone has thus far brought the cost of the land in question to $2,450. Two stenographers are working overtime on the evidence and aside from the costs of the case and the attorney fees have yet to be met.

The land is thought to be most valuable and was entered up by the contestants on the 2nd of December last. Mr. Hill's contest may result in his becoming possessor of the strip, which is located on ridge and eagerly sought by speculators who believe the ridge is rich with gold ore.

CLASS TO DEBATE

AT H. S. TOMORROW

Freshman and Sophomore Debate Will Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon, Much Interest Shown.

Much interest has been shown by the students of the high school this year in the debate work. Four lower class debating teams are organized, the Freshman and Sophomore girls' teams having had their contest last week and tomorrow after school the boys' teams will have their debate, by having these debates in the lower classes some valuable material has been discovered for the teams to represent the school.

The question for the debate tomorrow afternoon will be the discussion of the Minimum Wage. The sophomores will uphold the affirmative and their team is composed of the following members of the class: Joseph Johnston, Dean Kimball and William Buchholz. The freshmen who will uphold the negative side of the question are: George P. Merrill, Nowlan and George Arbuthnot.

Representatives from the cities who are in the girls' triangular debating league will meet at the high school Saturday and the question and dates for the debates will be settled. Fort Atkinson, Edgerton and Janesville high schools make up the league.

THE POST CARD.

Government statistics show that the sale of the plain, old-fashioned postcard has greatly fallen off during recent years. The picture postcard has of course driven it out of popularity.

Then, too, one question of the old habit of postal card correspondence has not gone by.

Most of us can remember well maiden aunts and others who were noted for their ability to write long effusions on postal cards. Some of them piled themselves on the number of words that could be legibly written on a postal card. If memory serves aright, this would often run up to two or three hundred words. Fine pointed pens were pushed with a concave motion that is a fast art in these days when public school children are taught to use sweeping and quickly formed strokes.

The cent that the postal card saved was a consideration in the eyes of maiden aunts and others. It was part of a well planned conservation of resources, by which bank books were acquired in days of small economic things. A two cent letter was a needless waste, in which not more the stamp, but the cost of paper and envelope was an appreciable consideration.

The publicity of the postal card message of course might be considered a drawback. Still in the hey-day of this form of epistolary communication, it was assumed that if you lived in a small town, your neighbors knew your business anyway.

The publicity of the message does not affect the sale of the modern postcard. The messages thereon inserted are so flat and routine, that it is doubtful if the rural postmistress ever stops to read them. It must be a tiresome task to wade through a score of cards, only to find such heart throbs as "Here I am at Washington! How are you? Fine weather. Good-bye."

COMING EVENTS.

Coming events, such as their shadows before them. When the poles are moved from the business section of the city and the new lighting system installed, Janesville will have no shadows, but will be one "white city."

Then will come the improvement of the down town streets, impossible until the conduits were completed, and other civic improvements. One thing follows another as a sequence and before another new season may expect Janesville business district to be a model section of the city as regards light and street improvements.

The experiment of owning the water works is too short of existence yet to fully realize what it will earn ultimately for the city, whether an increased expense or a saving, but after one public utility has been taken over it is hardly probable that a second or a third one may follow as a sequence of affairs. Of course under the state public utility law every citizen has a right of protest through proper authorities on what they may think is an injustice or an overcharge, but few care to avail themselves of the opportunity offered, preferring to be unable and pay the toll than start proceedings.

The Gazette has never favored municipal ownership of public utilities, and there is no reason why there should be any change of opinion at this time. However, as complaints are frequent, it is suggested that perhaps the city administration might do something to straighten out some of the disputes as soon as it finds time.

THE COUNTY AGENT.

It is perhaps unfortunate that the county board of supervisors did not give the question of a county agent a little more careful consideration than they did. It has proven a success in other districts why would it not have been successful here? There is no line of business that can not be improved upon. There is a business man, and a farmer, a householder, a man who can not learn something from his advantage from experts in his particular line of activity. Apparently the county agent idea was met with opposition that was unreasonable by a coterie of men who went out of their way to seek to defeat the plan. Of course it was an experiment, but without experiments the real value could not have been tested, and it is unfortunate that it was turned down at this time.

THE DOVE OF PEACE.

Will the dove of peace settle over the next republican national convention when it assembles in Chicago, and find a united party, conservatives and progressives, assembled together for mature deliberations on questions of national importance? Present indications are this will be the case, and it is to be hoped that they will be an accomplished fact by June 1st. The progressives have made the first real prospect of peace and there should be no hesitation in accepting them on the part of the G. O. P. leaders. As a combined and united party once more the election of a republican president and congress would be assured. The outcome will be watched with interest the country over.

HOW LONG?

How long will it be possible for the president and his able lieutenant to hoodwink the public, and to what lengths they will go in this endeavor are questions which gravely concern not only those who have the standing and dignity of the United States at heart, but the democratic leaders as well. Already "Wall Street" is wise to the situation. On Tuesday last Mr. Tumulty gave out a statement from the White House in which he referred to the "grave situation" Wednesday morning the New York "Sun" remarked, apropos of sentiment in Wall Street, "Again there was no weakness in the stock market corresponding to what appeared to be Washington's interpretation of the relations between this country and the Teutonic powers. There was no attempt to explain this apparent immunity of the market from fright on this score except on the ground that there had been so many other crises of the kind that a threatened breaking off of relations had become a played out factor." The White House methods—which, by the way, are in marked contrast to the state department methods—having become a played out factor in the financial world, how long will it take them to become a played out factor in the political world? How long will it take the rank and file of the voters to come to a realization that President Wilson is persistently "playing politics" with our foreign relations, and that he is the first president of the United States who has ever stooped to such methods of advancing his personal popularity? How long will it be before the people realize that by such methods the president is detracting from the dignity of the office and actually impeding the relations between this country and the European belligerents? And when the people do realize these facts will they not resist such persistent and crafty efforts to play upon their fears, in a word, to deceive them, and, resenting them, will not the Wilson-Tumulty brand of politics act as a boomerang on the democratic party? These are questions which are being seriously asked, not by republicans alone, but by democratic leaders, the wisest among whom deplore the facts. Were Mr. Wilson the type of man who welcomed advice from his party colleagues, or even who would receive their well-meant advice in the spirit in which it was offered, the demand that he abandon this type of cheap politics and muzzle Tumulty would come to him from all the larger and wiser democrats in congress.

The coming gathering of the republicans at Madison promises to be most interesting and as it is the first gathering of its kind the platform adopted may have its effect upon the national republican platform adopted in Chicago in June.

This is fine weather for the ice men and the coal agents. If their harvest then—one to harvest the frozen bulk to be disposed of next summer, and the other to furnish fuel to keep out the cold.

The statement of the census bureau that there are Indians in every state in the union will cause no surprise in England, where they understand that the war-whoop is still heard in the suburbs of New York.

Much akum is expressed at the tone of Kaiser William's utterances, but if he would turn down the corners of his mustache, they would not sound so fierce.

New Yorkers complain because people stand still on the moving stairway. New Yorkers view any fragment of rest much as nature does a vacuum.

It is remarked that the high cost of living actuated the ancients, but they could always be quieted down by getting up a costly foreign war.

Living models instead of lay figures are favored by the Window Trimmers' association. What the public wants is living clerks instead of lay figures behind the counter.

Many cities are adopting battle cries as business "boosters." For some of our neighbors "bottle cries" would be more appropriate.

When the composers don't have much to do, it is always a good plan to put the obituaries of some more evildoers into type.

Some national people are insisting that the schools should educate the children instead of preparing them for college.

It is complained that telephone operators never let you finish a sentence, which shows that they possess excellent judgment.

Half Bad.

"This Way Out" is a welcome sign to the man who is in debt.

It was an awful moment when Simon Simons, the closest man in Simtown, found a counterfeit half dollar in the cash drawer of his store. But after pacing the floor and crying out that he was ruined, he had a bright idea.

Walking to the town hall, he saw Phlegm Stuttes, the village idiot, being chased by a crowd of boys. He took a half dollar, and went to the store and bought a bunch of tobacco. You can keep the tobacco, all but one bite, but give me the change.

Phlegm Stuttes, whose favorite fruit was pig tobacco, grinned foolishly and raced off. In no time at all he was back with the change.

"How did you ever get to Hick-hanger's and back so soon?" marvelled Simon Simons as he pocketed the change.

"I didn't go to Hick-hanger's," explained the village idiot with a senseless smile. "He went to your store."

With a horrid groan Simon Simons fainted against the village pump.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON.

The Flashers. To see the Flashers on the street, you'd swear they had a pile of very latest style.

They roll around in taxicabs, put tang in their tea.

And Mrs. Flasher glibly gabs on high society.

They lack a goodly meal away when they are in the city.

But often in their own home they go superfluous to bed.

To buy the food their table lacks they haven't cash enough.

For all they say goes on their backs to play the game called "bluff."

Almost Time For These. That sterling patriot, Senator

Introduce. "I now have the honor to introduce."

"We are gathered here this evening with a noble purpose, that of protecting our country from the hand of the apostate."

"To do this we must send to Washington that fearless champion of the people's choice, Byron H. Bluffs."

"The possibilities of this country extend from the Arctic Borealis to the day of judgment."

"That magnificent document, the Declaration of Independence—"

"We will rally around that magnificent emblem of our country, the grand old Stars and Stripes."

"When you leave the polling place on election day, fellow patriots, leave with the knowledge that you have done your full duty by yourself and by posterity by having dropped in a vote for Septimus W. Soggs for corner of this great and glorious country which you call your home."

Answer to Inquiries. Louis—The

dear biscuits lying around your office. The life insurance agents won't eat them. Try a spring gun on your next floor.

Bill—There is only one way to get shirts cheaper than by watching the advertisements in this paper, and that is to watch the neighbors' clotheslines.

Margaret—You ask why the bionics are most popular with the young man. It is because, of course, "it's fair in love."

J. I. T.—The most original show we ever saw was an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with two Little Evans and two heavens.

Getting Spliced. The marriage microbe is a bird that's hard to understand.

The short man always asks the tall sky-scraper for her hand.

The man who's six feet in his socks will wed for good and all.

Some maiden who is missing fair, but only four feet tall.

The brilliant girl who takes the prize and outshines all the school.

Is more than apt to cast her fate in marriage with some fool.

The learned man who knows his books and has a sober mind.

Most likely weds the dullest young dame of the crowd.

The prettiest of all the girls will wed some cross-eyed ghoul.

Who doesn't look as though he knew enough to even think.

The homely girl who likely hooks the handsome millionaire.

The frivolous maiden weds a man who's loaded down with care.

The plump girl is apt to draw some old night gown's state.

GET RID OF A RACKING LA GRIPPE COUGH—IT WEAKENS

For the severe racking cough that comes with La Grippe, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is wonderfully healing and soothing. It eases the tightness over the chest, raises the phlegm easily and helps the racking, tearing cough that is so exhausting and weakening. R. C. Collins, postmaster, Barnegat, N. J., says: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound soon stopped the severe La Grippe cough that completely exhausted me. It can't be beat." W. T. Sherer.

"This Way Out" is a welcome sign to the man who is in debt.

Who doesn't think that 2 o'clock is anywhere near late.

The pastor of the church may draw a social butterfly.

Who thinks more of her new fall hat than napkins up on high.

The more you try to solve the thing, the less you really know.

Philosophers all gave it up some centuries ago.

The mystery is fathomless, as much as how closing your eyes.

It's only human nature, pure and simple, nothing more.

Well, What Does It Mean? Colonel Roosevelt gets even with the president by calling him a Byzantine logophile. We'll bet a postage stamp that the president knows what it means, too.—Philadelphia Ledger.

How many others did?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wear and tear on dictionaries has been frightful. Leaves are rusting yet.

PICTURE POST CARD FAD IS NO LONGER POPULAR

Beloit, Jan. 13.—Picture and motto post cards are no longer the fad. Postmaster Steele made this discovery after closing his report for the past year's postal finance. Where a few years ago every special day was an occasion for a deluge of the picture and motto card, now the card is being discarded and but two occasions seem to prompt their use. These occasions are Christmas and Easter.

The receipts of the Beloit postoffice for the year amounted to $64,900.

SIX-YEAR-OLD HAD CROUP

"I have a little girl six years old who has a great deal of trouble with croup," writes W. E. Curry of Evansville, Ind. "I have used Foley's Honey and Tar, obtaining instant relief for her. To do this we must send to Washington that fearless champion of the people's choice, Byron H. Bluffs."

PRIEST BRAVED DEATH TO LEARN FRIENDS' FATE IN FIRST LINE TRENCH

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

London, Jan. 12.—How a Roman Catholic priest braved death in No Man's Land to learn the fate of some of his comrades in the British trenches is a story just received from Northern France. It was in one of the first line trenches, on one of the darkest, foggiest nights recently, that eight British bombers of a famous regiment crawled over the parapet and disappeared in toward the enemy trenches.

Dawn broke and they had not appeared. As the day advanced, it was decided as definitely certain that the bombers were either prisoners or lying dead in the muddy expanse that separated the opposing strongholds.

Enemy snipers were busy and it was almost certain death to expose one's self in order to have a look.

Father, attached to the regiment, came sauntering along the firing line. He heard the story and volunteered to try and find the bodies. He left the trench and returned garbed in his surplus, cuffed in hand.

Without hesitation, he climbed out of the trench and walked fearfully, but slowly, toward the German lines. Men watched him breathlessly through their periscopes, expecting to see him shot down at every step. Not a shot came from the enemy side.

As he reached the enemy wire entanglements, the priest was seen to stop and kneel in prayer. He remained thus for some minutes, then arose and walked until he was lost to view from the British side. Later he was rediscovered walking slowly back toward the British trench. He arrived safely and explained that the Germans had held up four khaki caps on their bayonets. The mystery was solved, four of the bombers were prisoners, the others dead.

GERMANS USE TRENCH SAW MILL TO PRODUCE MATERIAL FOR TRENCH

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) In The Argonne, France, June 12.—Several miles behind the front, yet near enough to it so that its products can be transported to the trenches with little difficulty, lies the so-called Hindenburg Mill—a one time French sawmill that for years had lain inactive, and which has been utilized by the German for fitting up their positions.

Every bit of machinery in the mill is French—most of it requisitioned from similar establishments in all parts of the Argonne Forest. The Germans estimate that they have spent not more than 2000 marks in rehabilitating the institution which today is turning out from 17,000 to 30,000 marks worth of furniture a month.

The mill originally was purely a saw mill, but departments have been added in which staves are being made for the trench shelters at the front, and in which many metal parts are moulded for the manifold needs of the fighting men a few miles away.

Several score of soldiers, carpenters and machinists by trade, have been assigned to the Hindenburg mill and are, daily, turning out by the wholesale window sashes, chairs, bookcases, desks, tables, and other things for the "rooms" where the German soldiers, at leisure, spends his time.

NEW RAILROAD PROJECT WILL BE STARTED IN SPRING ON THE HOLCOMBE BRANCH

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Chipewaga Falls, Jan. 13.—One of the largest railroad projects in the state to be undertaken this spring will be a cut-off, now being planned by the Omaha road on its Holcombe branch, to carry its route around the water power project at the falls up the river from this city.

The new line will cut-off five miles of the distance to Holcombe. The route is being planned now and construction work will start in the spring. One of the main engineering problems in regard to the building of the cut-off will be an 800-foot bridge which will have to be built across the river.

The change in route is made necessary because much of the present line in the Paint river bottoms will be converted into a lake when the dam is finished.

The cut-off will strike the old line at Anson.

OWNERS OF WALNUT TREES

SELL WOOD FOR GUN STOCKS

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 13.—Munition makers in the east need the only men to whom the European war is bringing increased incomes. Nebraska landowners who have walnut groves with in prime homes or walnut timber along the creeks on their land are reaping a harvest.

Four carloads of walnut logs to be used in the manufacture of gun stocks for the European armies were shipped in one day from Sprague, Neb. All this lumber was grown near Sprague. It was sold to a Kansas City firm which will make it into rifle stocks before shipping it abroad. Most of this supply will go to England and Russia.

CHARGE OF SELLING "MIXED" BUTTER IS MADE ON A. W. ELSE

Complaint Made in Municipal Court That Dealer Sold Adulterated Butter to R. W. McCann.

Arthur W. Else, of this city, was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on a complaint that was signed James Van Duser, charging the sale of adulterated butter to R. W. McCann, of Janesville, on October 18th, 1915. The complaint is issued by the state, and it is reported is a state food and dairy inspector. He, however, was not present in court this morning when Else answered to the charge with a plea of not guilty. It is alleged in the complaint that Else, "unlawfully did sell, furnish and deliver to R. W. McCann, of Janesville, butter, adulterated, in that substance had been mixed with it, so as to lower and depreciate and injure its quality, strength, quality and purity." Another allegation made in the one count is that the alleged mixed butter was composed in whole, in part, with the cheaper substance.

Else after his plea of not guilty, had his case set for January twenty-sixth, and he was left in the custody of W. D. Duser, constable, who served the arresting papers. Nothing has been revealed by the authorities further than what the complaint alleges.

During 1915 the government, it appears, seized 750 pounds of butter at Madison, and the butter was held until an investigation by the federal chemists as to its water content. It was stated in press reports, that this butter was the product of E. Else and Son, operating at McFarland. Report on the seizure of this butter is as follows: "Suspicion that adulterated butter was being sold in Madison first came to the attention of Dairy and Food Commissioner Weigle when complaint was made to him by a manufacturer of a cafeteria that the butter which she was buying could not be used on the pan-cake kiddle, it 'split' badly." Commissioner Weigle suspected an adulteration of water and notified Inspector John Rennebaum of the city food and milk inspection department, who secured samples of the suspected product.

Analyses were made and the state chemists and the same result found. 10 per cent of moisture content. Commissioner Weigle notified the federal authorities and Inspector Harry Ridings, of Milwaukee, representing the federal revenue department, came here and made the seizure of the butter, pending analyses at Washington.

According to what the Madison report said, the adulteration of butter with water is one of the most profitable to the maker because when the water weight can be sold at 25 cents or 30 cents per pound, the gain is absolute net.

It is not known if the above case was the cause of the charges in this city or if the case alleged is a similar one.

"SHOOTING IN" NEW YEAR COSTS 5 MEN SMALL COURT FINES

Five Residents of River Street Pleaded Guilty to Shooting Inside City Limits When 1916 Was Born.

For introducing the year of 1916 to Janesville with revolver, rifle and shotgun shots, five men were arraigned in the municipal court and fined from one to fifteen dollars and costs this morning on the complaint of P. D. Champion, chief of police. "The shooting the New Year in" came very expensive to the men, who all live on River street, and who are considering the fact that all are day laborers, and several were not in a position to pay the amounts stipulated by the court.

The trouble started when the telephone company discovered that a piece of their big lead cable had been damaged by shot, apparently buckshot, and the line was seriously hampered for four days and required extensive repair work. Water leaked out of the wires and caused an electrical disturbance. An investigation was made by the police and River street residents were called in before the chief to explain. When it was found that the violators were adults and not youths, as first supposed, and the damage to the telephone line was serious, the prosecution followed.

On the charge of shooting inside the city limits.

Fred Rodan and Ferdinand Rodan, brothers, were the first to be brought in for this morning. Three other defendants followed until the entire five were before the justice bench. The Rodan brothers admitted shooting but were in an attitude to plead guilty. The court called on the defense, and the defendant at once admitted his guilt. Lawrence stated he fired a shotgun, loaded with No. 4 shot, five or six times in the air, across the river, and that he was in the habit of shooting when it was time for the new year, said the man.

"Three dollars and costs or five days in the city," the court said.

Walter Wheelock was the next. He pleaded guilty and stated he shot off a rifle of a 38-40 caliber. At this point Chief Champion drew a murder charge looking cartridge out of his pocket and submitted it to the court for the plaintiff. The shell was of the type that would tear a barn down and carry two or three miles. Wheelock declared that he shot three or four times into the ground.

The court magistrate took the cartridge and looked at its ponderous size for a few seconds.

"Did you shoot a gun off with this cartridge?" the court asked.

"Yes, sir, I did," said Wheelock with an air like George Washington must have used in explaining the cherry tree carving incident in his history.

"Was the gun loaded?" asked the judge without a smile.

The defendant did not answer this question, nor did anyone else.

Wheelock was in the vicinity of the heaviest fine of fifteen dollars and costs.

Albert Bills would not come to the court as did the others, without a warrant being served on him. Chief Champion accompanied Bills, and had an officer and him and read the warrant to him and then escort him to the court house. Bills shot off a few blanks and drew the minimum fine of one dollar and costs.

Then the Rodan brothers were called upon. Fred pleaded guilty and said he shot three or four times into the air with a shotgun. The costs of each case was $2.50.

City Attorney Dougherty appeared for the defendants on the grounds that they were not in a financial position to pay a material amount. The mystery who shot the cable was not solved, for one and all of the five brought up this morning were able to explain that the charges from their guns could "not have possibly hit the cable."

When the proposition of being allowed to fire off guns to celebrate New Years came up in the records, Chief Champion said "all you are allowed to shoot off is hot air."

The police may make further investigation this morning, all stated that there were numerous others who used guns to celebrate the coming of 1916.

An

Bullets Mark Chapel Holding Body of Murdered Alexander

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Belgrade, Jan. 13.—The last of the house of Obrenovich, the murdered Alexander, lies in a little chapel in the Belgrade cemetery, forgotten by conquerors and conquered alike. Beside him rests Queen Draga, the woman for whose sake he broke off relations with his father and whose influence upon him undoubtedly led to the sordid tragedy that extinguished this royal line.

The chapel stands in the center of a neglected graveyard. It is a primitive building, a larger sample of the typical Serbian peasant's cottage, without ornamentation of any kind, it is of brick, rudely plastered on the outside. Only a cross carved into a tablet giving the date of erection shows that it is not an ordinary house or even a substantial barn. Bullets have bored neat holes through two of the plain glass windows, and have made blisters in a half dozen places on the plain sheet-iron doors. The scene of the crime was a half mile away, but the modern infantry rifle has a long range, and the chapel stands on ground elevated somewhat above the scene of the street battles.

A few Hungarians are quartered in a building a hundred yards away from the chapel. None of them had any idea where the key to the chapel was to be found. The Associated Press representative finally crawled through a small hole in the wall, which appeared to have been made by a shell which failed to explode. Sentinel bricks and mortar lay on the floor inside.

The scene was depressing. In the middle of the floor lay a box containing books, dust-covered and in disarray. The high altar had been shored back into a small anteroom. The sacred vestments, some of them torn and muddled, were strewn about the floor and on the altar. A picture of a saint, its protecting glass splintered, lay face down. A bullet had found its way into one of the crude mural paintings. Mortar dust lay deep over everything.

The correspondent had been informed that the murdered king and queen were buried in this chapel, but there was nothing in sight even remotely resembling a royal tomb. Near one corner was a plain lettered slab flanked by two wooden crosses. In Cyrillic letters on the slab were the names of the Obrenovich family. Right and left stood a crude Roman cross of wood. On the crossbar of the cross at the right was rudely lettered "Alexander Obrenovich." The corresponding bar on the cross at the left bore the name "Draga Obrenovich." There was not another letter on either cross, no date of birth nor death, no word to indicate that the persons buried here had once been king and queen of the country.

In the more than thirteen years that have elapsed since the murder, the crosses have not even been set upright. They are simply leaned against the whitewashed wall. A nicked candlestick stands near the aquiline tomb; at the other side is a tall, cylindrical sheet-iron stove, sole means of heating the chapel. No guard rail separates the tomb from the place occupied by the worshippers.

The mean tomb in the little chapel recalls the recollections that stirred all the world—with the exception, according to the contemporary reports of Serbia itself—in June, 1903. Trouble had been accumulating for years at the Serbian court. Alexander had alienated his father, Milan, and offended various European courts by marrying Draga, Maschin, widow of an engineer and a former lady in waiting of Queen Natalia. Nepotism and general favoritism still further embittered the old court party at Belgrade. Particularly was there wide dissatisfaction among the army officers.

What gave greater impetus to the growing conspiracy against King Alexander was his act in suspending the constitution in April 7, 1903. Clinging to the mandates of the senators and councillors of state, dissolving the Skupshchina and setting aside various laws, including the press law and the election law.

Late in the night of June 10, 1903, a band of conspirators, chiefly officials and army officers, and including Colonel Maschin, brother of Draga's dead husband, overpowered or shot down the weak palace guard and forced their way to the door of the royal apartment. This door was blown down with dynamite, and the king and queen were shot and stabbed to death, and their bodies thrown through the window into the small garden surrounding the palace.

Contemporary reports describe the murder as taking place in the old Konak. The correspondent was told here in Belgrade, however, that the tragedy occurred in a small garden house which stood midway between the old and new Konaks. This "murder" as it was termed, is said to have been torn down at the order of King Peter, who did not care to have a perpetual reminder of the tragedy before his eyes.

The mutilated bodies of the murdered king and queen, it was reported at the time, were thrown into rude wooden coffins, carried to the chapel on the handcart of a sewer-cleaner and buried unceremoniously a few hours after the murder.

Thus ended the rule and line of the Obrenovichs, thirty-five years to the day after the greatest of the line, Prince Michael, had been murdered in the Topcider Park, west of the city. Prince Alexander, who was the youngest son of the late king, was a devoted follower of his father, King Peter, was twice tried in Hungary for participation in that murder, but after a conviction in one court was acquitted by two others in a conspiracy of 1868 was planned to restore the Karageorgievitch dynasty, and the murders of June 10, 1903, whether or not they had that as their principal aim, resulted in a restoration of the Skupshchina called Peter to the throne some weeks after the tragedy. King Peter, who was at the time in Geneva, made a formal statement denying any complicity in the plot. No ally, for knowledge of the No body was punished for the murder.

Edgerton News

AGED PIONEER OF SOUTHERN WISCONSIN CALLED BY DEATH

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, Jan. 13.—Edwin Rodgers, a pioneer settler of this community, died at Fort Atkinson on Sunday, aged 84 years. For a great many years Rodgers was a resident of Edgerton, where he had a blacksmith shop and a livery stable. He built and owned the first mill operated on Rock river north of Janesville. The mill stood on the east bank of the river at the junction of the Rock and the Edgerton.

Mrs. Albert Smith and Miss Della Schaubnessy were Janesville callers yesterday, calling on the former's grandfather, Thomas Madden. Mr. Madden is a past ninety-five years of age and had the misfortune to fall and break one of his legs.

A. B. Campbell was a business caller to Milton Junction yesterday.

Miss Grace and Mrs. Greenwood called on Janesville friends Wednesday.

Two Jersey cows were shipped by express yesterday to Hazel Green, Wis., from Q. Emery farm.

Mr. L. J. Dickenson and Mr. Mrs. Rotne, called on Janesville friends Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles Langworthy went to Madison today for a week's visit with friends. Mr. Langworthy has accepted a position as salesman on the road and is now working in the vicinity of St. Louis, Mo.

The high school basketball team has a game scheduled for tomorrow evening at the gym with Cambridge. Come out and help the boys along.

The Young Ladies' Bridge club met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Jensen. The afternoon was spent at cards and light refreshments were served.

Fred Gauger is confined to his home with blood poisoning in his arm. Miss Clara Stevens of New York, who has been visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Stevens, returned to New York last evening.

J. F. Coon of Madison is a business caller in the city today.

Mrs. Frank Williams and Mrs. L. Wood were Milton Junction callers last evening. Mrs. Williams taking charge of the installation of officers of the W. R. C. which was held last evening.

Ray Watworthy of Janesville called on old friends in the city yesterday.

Mrs. William Wetzel of Janesville called on her mother yesterday, who is confined to her home with sickness.

At a meeting of the property-holders along the Saunders Creek last evening the following resolution was adopted: Resolved that a committee consisting of Messrs. Wm. Pelton, D. W. North, J. A. Jensen, P. E. Edgerton, W. B. Doty and Henry Stricker be appointed to memorial to the common council of the city of Edgerton to take such action as may be able or authorized to sue to protect the city and its inhabitants from damage by the proposed Saunders Creek drainage district, and to consult counsel and if in their judgment it is necessary petition the circuit court for a new drainage district or to be annexed to the Saunders Creek district. Further, that said committee be authorized to present our views to the common council and to advise and consult with them if requested.

The meeting was attended by about fifty, who were directly affected. Mr. W. G. Kirchoff, the consulting engineer of Madison, who was to have been present, did not come last evening because the train was so late, but Mr. Dunnevald, his assistant, was present and explained thoroughly the blue prints and answered all other questions. Most of the council were present at the meeting, not as a body, but as individuals and were much interested in the project.

H. S. McGinnis of Sparta is in the local tobacco market for a few days.

Word was received by Mrs. L. A. Anderson that her father, I. O. Brictson, died at Victoria, Mexico. The message gave no particulars except that he died from sickness.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

OF DAISY DEAN

Audiences who have seen Mary Pickford's love scenes with Owen Moore have been impressed that they were the real thing, and indeed they were. The little photoplay queen admits it—Moore is her husband.

At first, Mary says, it was very difficult to go through love scenes with her screen sweetheart, but she will not admit that it was because of any embarrassment resulting from her feelings for him, but "because she was not used to the camera."

But Owen Moore became smitten with Mary when she was just an "extra" and a large share of his love-making was done right before the camera. That was perhaps the most public courtship in recent years, because thousands have seen these love scenes.

REVIVING INDIAN DRAMA
The so-called Indian drama is due for a big revival, according to Thos. H. Ince.

A recent interesting event at his west coast studio was the arrival of fifty more redskins in addition to the C. Gardiner colony of noble red men already there.

They have been gathered together from all over the southwest and are headed by Chief Two Lance, a venerable Indian actor, thrifty as he is clever, and reputed to be worth $250,000.

Italian tenors and prima donnas have nothing in common with these aborigines, quite a number of whom have not rich throats and strong love for wild west shows that feature Indians. The first big Indian play from Triangle Kay-Bee is the work of C. Gardiner Sullivan.

Henry Watling is visiting the haunts of the duck in the bays along the Illinois river on a duck hunting expedition. The recreation was necessary in order to throw off the gloom acquired while being haunted by a raven in the production of "The Raven."

Norma Talmadge has leased Anna Pickford's house in Hollywood. The Pickford house is of early Spanish architecture, and the interior, due to its simplicity and artistic arrangement of furniture and wall hangings, is wonderfully attractive.

MORRIS MILLER

It is only on occasions that a man who has spent most of his life in baseball ever quits until conditions force him to. When Frank Chance left the New York club and went back to Chicago, he left time to come with baseball for all time to come. Last week he purchased a third interest in the Los Angeles club and will be manager next season. The Chicago club is the only one in the country who felt keenly the loss of Jimmy Callahan, who, after having signed to manage the team, persuaded Johnny Powers, its owner, to give him his release so he could take the Pittsburgh job. That forced Powers to get some equally prominent baseball man to fill Callahan's place, and he seems to have succeeded in this good business move by inducing Chance to join him.

A lot of wise ball players who figured that the war would go on for a long time, and that they would be financially benefited thereby, are seeing the error of their way. Tris Speaker probably could have signed at the same figure for another year had he shown a willingness to do so. But he preferred to wait until the Reds came along with a big proposition, so he could hold up the Boston club for a higher salary than he was getting. Frank Baker made a similar mistake, and stayed out of the field too long. Dave Davenport, who the Sox spurned a contract handed him at the end of last season.

Then came peace, and the beans were spilled for these financiers. They are going to be taught a lesson by employers and are forced to accept a substantial cut in pay.

Jimmy Callahan is right on the job. He is evidently determined to keep in close touch with his players and has been writing them letters ever since the day he was elected to appointment to manage the Pirates. He is getting acquainted with his players by the mail route and it is as well as President Dreyfuss, who is convinced that he will have a live man on the job the coming season.

Kid Graves has signed articles for a ten-round bout with Ted Lewis at Milwaukee Jan. 27. The bout will furnish an excellent opportunity to judge who is the best welterweight in the country. Because of his sensational work against Jack Britton at Boston several weeks ago and just a short time ago in New York against Willie Ritchie, Lewis has been called by some critics the lightweight champion. Other critics insist that Graves has a legitimate claim to the title. Which means that Milwaukee promoters have framed a great card which should partly settle the question.

Already bets are being made that the newly-vamped Cubs could win the flag in the National league, and that the Browns, also an amalgamation of the American League, would win the American League flag.

It is base ball history that whenever the Cubs have been thus consolidated the teams have been too great for the opposition, when the Louisville and Pittsburgh clubs were consolidated. The combined strength that resulted simply moved down all opposition and was the result of three successive banners. And when the Brooklyn and Baltimore clubs were merged, the same thing ensued, lasting one season: Two flags for the combination.

Discarded cities in the Three Eyes league are turning their bridges, so to speak. The Springfield park was torn down; a storm did the work at Decatur as effectively as a wrecking ball, and now word comes that the firm home of the Three Eyes for the lumber and nails in it. All that year, played on fields provided by the municipalities, with no turnstile attached.

Johnny "Sunny" Mann, second baseman and captain-elect of the University of Pennsylvania baseball team, has left college to enter business. The loss to the red and blue team of Mann is a keen blow, as Mann was a star fielder as well as a good stickler and slugger.

Labar.
No greater misfortune could befall a people than a general belief that labor is a mean manual quite as much as intellectual toil—is to be shunned, to be graded or to be looked down upon as a disgrace.—Dr. James W. Robertson.

AT THE MAJESTIC.
Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow Tonight.

Those who viewed "The Silent Voice" when it was presented on the legitimate stage at the Liberty Theatre in New York last season, with Otis Skinner in the principal part, will be interested to learn that it has been produced in motion picture form by the Quality Pictures Corporation for release in the Metro program and will be shown here at the Majestic tonight and tomorrow.

Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow, who are probably known to more motion picture lovers than any stellar combination now being shown on the screen, are starred in this important production, and Frank Bacon, one of the best known character actors in the legitimate, here makes his debut before motion picture audiences.

AT THE PRINCESS.

"The College Orphan" On Friday. That this charming comedy drama is timely, reasonable and full of the right atmosphere is to mention merely its most obvious attractions. Director Dowling has succeeded in getting the true college spirit into all the school scenes, whether indoors or out. The versatile Carter DeHaven at the opening of the story is sent to college by his irate dad, and in disgrace, which is somewhat tempered by the thousand dollar check secretly given him by his fond mamma. His escapades with his fraternity brothers; his championship with the little maid of all work at his ridiculous compliance with the faculty order that the game must be made "more refined and genteel"; his victory over his college rival, and his father's business competitor, make a human story that moves swiftly, logically and with the greatest charm. The settings are elaborate as to interiors, and realistic and interesting as to exterior. The entire production is of the sort to interest any audience and prove a pleasant entertainment at the Princess on Friday.

"STILL WATERS" A PICTURE OF BEAUTY

Marguerite Clark Charms Apollo Audiences in a Delightful Photoplay.

"Still Waters," with Marguerite Clark is a pretty good example of the kind of picture plays the public likes, in spite of the blizzard the Apollo was packed last night and one forgot all else in the pleasure of watching dainty little Marguerite Clark cavort along the two paths of an old canal urging the four-legged "propeller" to greater efforts. All the droll comedy of which Miss Clark is capable of was brought out in "Still Waters," which is a rare combination of pastoral romance, rural comedy and thrilling drama.

The beautiful scenery of eastern Pennsylvania was utilized in making the out-of-door scenes. The scenic beauty of the Delaware river and the Lehigh Valley canal, which parallels it at Easton, Pa., lends rare charm to the tale.

Another left-handed pitcher has been obtained by manager Griffith for Washington. He is Humphries, a big southpaw, who pitched for Norfolk last season. Humphries, who was recommended to Griffith by Bill Hannan of Norfolk, was drafted by the Minneapolis club and then turned over to the Nationals, who will give him a trial in the spring. If he shows that he needs further development after a trial with the Griffiths he will be sent to Minneapolis to get the needed experience.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a cough don't stop it merely "stop" it with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the inflamed nerves. Treat the cause—kill the inflamed membranes. This is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish very quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heals the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in quaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The Lone Wolf

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

(Copyright, by Louis Joseph Vance.)

CHAPTER VI.

The Pack Gives Tongue.

Lanyard's first destination was that convenient little ground-floor apartment near the Trocadero, at the junction of the Rue Roget and the Avenue de l'Alma; but his way thither was so roundabout that the best part of an hour was required for what might have been less than a twenty-minute taxicab course direct from Troyon's. It was past one when he arrived, aloof, at the corner.

Not that he grudged the time, for in Lanyard's esteem Bourke's epigram had come to have the weight and force of an axiom: "The more trouble you make for yourself, the less the dear public will make for you."

Paradoxically, he hadn't the least intention of attempting to deceive anybody as to his permanent address in Paris, where Michael Lanyard, com-muniqué of fine paintings, was a figure too conspicuous to permit of his making a secret of his residence. De Morbihan, moreover, through recognizing him at Troyon's, had rendered it impossible for Lanyard to adopt a nom de guerre there, even had he thought such course advisable.

But he had certain matters to attend to before dawn, affairs demanding privacy; and while by no means sure he was followed, one can seldom be sure of anything, especially in Paris, where nothing is impossible; and it seemed as well to lose a hypothetical spy first as last. And his mind would not be at ease with respect to Roddy, thanks to De Morbihan's gasconade in the hearing of the detective, and also to that hint which the count had dropped concerning a fatal blunder in the course of Lanyard's British campaign.

He fitted key to latch and quietly let himself into his flat by a private entrance from the street, the possession of which, in addition to the usual door opening on the court and under the eye of the concierge, distinguished this from the ordinary Parisian apartment and rendered it doubly suited to the adventurer's uses.

Then he turned on the lights and moved quickly from room to room of the three comprising his quarters, with comprehensive glances reviewing their condition.

But, indeed, he hadn't left the reception hall for the salon without feeling assured that things were in no respect as they ought to be—a hat he had left on the hall-rack had been moved to another peg; a chair had been shifted six inches from its ordained position, and the door of a clothes closet, which he had locked on leaving, now stood an inch ajar.

The state of the salon, which he had furnished as a lounge and study, and of the tiny dining room and the bedroom adjoining, bore out these testimonies to the fact that alien hands had thoroughly ransacked the apartment, leaving no square inch unscrutinized.

Yet he missed nothing. His rooms were a private gallery of valuable paintings and antique furniture to poison with envy the mind of any collector, and housed into the bargain a small museum of rare books, manuscripts, and minor articles of exquisite workmanship whose individuality, aside from intrinsic worth, rendered them priceless. A burglar of discrimination could have carried away in one coat pocket loot enough to foot the bill for twelve months of profligate living. But nothing had been removed—nothing, at least, that was apparent in the first tour of inspection; which, if sweeping, was in no way superficial. He moved slowly from object to object, checking off items and noting their condition, with the sole result of justifying his first impression—whereas nothing had escaped handling, nothing had been removed.

As a last test he opened his desk—of which the lock proved to have been deftly picked—drew up a chair, and went through its pigeonholes. His scanty correspondence, composed chiefly of letters exchanged with art dealers, had been scrutinized and replaced carefully, in disorder—and here again he missed nothing; but in the end, removing a small drawer and inserting a hand in the recess, he found and pressed a spring which released a rack of pigeonholes and exposed the secret cabinet which forms an inevitable attribute of such pieces of period furniture.

A shallow box, this secret space contained one thing only, out that one of considerable value, being the leather bill-fold in which the adventurer kept a store of ready money against emergencies.

It was mostly for this, indeed, that he had come to his apartment; his London campaign having demanded an expenditure far beyond his calculations, so that he had landed in Paris with less than one hundred francs in pocket. And Lanyard, for all his pride of spirit, acknowledged one haunting fear, that of finding himself strapped in time of stress.

The fold yielded up its hoard to a sou—Lanyard removed and counted over five notes of one thousand francs and ten of twenty pounds—their sum approximating two thousand dollars. But if nothing had been taken away, something had been added—the back of one of the Bank of England notes had been used as a blank for a memorandum.

Lanyard spread it out and studied it attentively.

The handwriting had been traced with no discernible attempt at disguise, but was quite strange to him. The pen employed had been one of those needle-pointed nibs so popular in France; the hand was that of an educated Frenchman. The substance of the memorandum translated as follows:

"To the Lone Wolf—The Pack sends greetings and extends its invitation to participate in the benefits of its fraternity. One awaits him always at l'Abbaye Theleme."

A date was added, the date of that same day. Deliberately, when he had conned this communication, Lanyard produced his cigarette case, twisted the note of twenty pounds into a rude slip, set it afire, lighted his cigarette therefrom, and, rising, conveyed the burning paper to a cold and empty fireplace, where he permitted it to burn to a crisp, black ash.

When this was done his smile broke through his clouding scowl. "Well, my friend!" he informed the author of that document which now could never prove incriminating—"at all events, I have you to thank for a new sensation. It has long been my ambition to feel warranted in lighting a cigarette with a twenty-pound note, if the whim ever seized me!"

His smile faded slowly; the frown replaced it—something more valuable to him than a hundred dollars had just gone up in smoke.

CHAPTER VII.

Suspense.

His secret uncovered, all that laboriously constructed edifice of art and chicane which yesterday had seemed so impregnable a wall between the Lone Wolf and the world today torn asunder. Lanyard wasted time neither in fruitless lamentation or any other sort of repining.

Delaying only long enough to revise plans, he put out the lights and left by the courtyard door; for it was just possible that those whose sardonic whim it had been to name themselves "the Pack" might have stationed agents in the street to follow their dissocial brother in crime. And now, more than ever, Lanyard was firmly bent on going his own way unwatched.

Lanyard Studied It Attentively.

His course first led him stealthily past the door of the porter and across the court to the public hallway in the main body of the building. Happily there were no lights to betray him had anyone been awake to notice. For, thanks to Parisian notions of economy, even the best apartment houses dispense with elevator boys and with lights that burn up real money every hour of the night.

Afoot, and in complete darkness, he made his ascent of five flights of winding stairs, pausing at length before the door of an apartment on the sixth floor. A flash from a pocket-lamp located the keyhole; the key turned without a sound; the door swung on silent hinges.

Once inside, the adventurer moved more freely, with less precaution against noise. He was on known ground, and alone; the apartment, though furnished, was untenanted, and would so remain as long as Lanyard continued to pay the rent from London under an assumed name.

It was the convenience of this refuge and avenue of retreat, indeed, that had dictated his choice of this particular floor, for the sixth-story flat had one invaluable feature—a window opening on the roof of the adjoining building.

Two minutes' examination sufficed to convince Lanyard that here at least the Pack had not trespassed.

Five minutes later he picked the common lock of a door opening from the roof of an apartment house on the farthest corner of the block, found his way downstairs, knocked on the door of the porter's lodge, chanted that venerable open sesame of Paris, "Gordon, s'il vous plait!" and was made free of the street by a worthy concierge too sleepy to challenge the late-departing guest.

He walked three blocks, picked up a taxicab, and in ten minutes more was set down at the Gare des Invalides. Passing through the station without pause, he took to the streets afoot, following the Boulevard St. Germain to the Rue du Bac; a brief walk up this time-worn thoroughfare brought him to the ample, open and unguarded porte-cochere of a roomy court walled with beetling, ancient tenements.

Assuring himself that the courtyard was deserted, Lanyard addressed himself to a door on the right; to his knock it swung promptly ajar with a click of its latch. At the same time the adventurer produced from beneath his cloak a small black velvet vizar and adjusted it to mask the upper portion of his face. Then, entering a narrow and odorless corridor, whose obscurity was only emphasized by a lonely, guttering candle, he turned the knob of the first door and walked into a small, ill-furnished room.

A spare-bodied young man, who had been sitting at a desk, reading by the light of an oil lamp with a heavy green shade, rose and bowed courteously.

"Good morning, monsieur," he said with the cordiality of one who greets an acquaintance of old standing. "Be seated," he added, indicating an arm-chair beside the desk. "It is some time since I have had the honor of a call from monsieur."

"That is so," Lanyard admitted, sitting down. The young man followed suit. The lamplight, striking across his face beneath the greenish penumbra of the shade, discovered a countenance of Hebraic cast.

"Monsieur has something to show me, eh?"

"But naturally."

Lanyard's reply just escaped a flavor of coyness—as who should say, "What did you expect?" He was puzzled by something strange and new in the attitude of this young man, a trace of reserve and constraint.

They had been meeting in this manner for several years, conducting their secret and lawless business according to a formula invented by Bourke and religiously observed by Lanyard. A note or telegram of innocent superficial intent, addressed to a certain member of a leading firm of jewelers in Amsterdam, was the invariable signal for meetings such as this, which were always held in the same place, at an indeterminate hour after midnight, between this intelligent, cultivated and well-mannered young Jew and the thief in his mask.

FOR BRONCHITIS, SEVERE COUGHS, COLDS AND WHOOPING COUGH

Make the Best Medicine at Home—128 Teaspoonfuls for 50 Cents.

Money spent for the old style, ready-made medicine usually sold in bottles holding only 2 to 2 1/2 ounces (16 to 20 teaspoonfuls) is largely wasted, because most of them are composed principally of sugar and water. Yet you have to pay the same price as if it were all medicine. Stop wasting this money. You can make a better remedy for bronchial affections, at home at one-fifth the cost, merely go to Smith's Pharmacy and ask for 2 ounces (50c worth) of Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectant, which they guarantee will give perfect satisfaction. For money will be refunded. Mix this with one pint of granulated sugar and one-half pint of boiling water, which makes a full pint (128 teaspoonfuls). This new, simple, pleasant remedy is guaranteed to relieve the

A story is told of a young French woman who observed with punctiliousness the wartime precautions ordered by the police.

She kept the shutters closed at nightfall and the curtains pulled down so that not a speck of light would escape from her apartments. But one night, when reading the newspaper, she said that she had reached the limit.

The newspaper said that if the Zeppelins came, all persons must go into the cellars. She told her friends she would not go down into the cellar. "I do not care a fig for the Zeppelins," she said. "It is no use asking me, I will not go down into the cellar."

"But why?" asked her friend.

"Because," she replied, "I am afraid of spiders."

How to Make Want Ads Pay

Example No. 6
Say What You Mean
If a Want Ad. is so worded that its meaning is not plain, its pulling powers diminish, then and there. Put the most important points first. Use short sentences. If you are not sure that your Want Ad is strong, read it to some friend. His opinion is as good as an expert's. Here are two types of Want Ads regarding the same proposition. Which would you be most likely to answer?

A CONFUSING WANT AD
WANTED—A SPLENDID chance to make money. I want somebody to join me. A big thing if you have some capital. I will tell you about it if you're interested. Address.....

A CLEAR, EXPLICIT AD
MAKE $6 TO $15 WEEKLY RE- playing old silverware. I started with $4.00 and have made an average of $12.50 a month working only evenings and Saturday afternoons. You can help your present position. All outfit costs little. I show you how to get business and make money from the start.

There Are Plenty of Possible Patrons
There are always plenty of people who want what is offered, provided the offer is plain, and the plan is reasonable. The Want Ad that you write hurriedly, may seem to you to be perfectly plain, simply because you know what you mean. But to the person who has no way of judging the purpose back of your Want Ad, that meaning is lacking. It is not enough to have many persons read your Want Ad. They must understand it. This applies to the writing of your Want Ad for any kind of business best fitted to tell your story. Most of the errors in the wording of a Want Ad are due to haste. The more you hurry, the more you are confused, and confusion strikes at the clear thought necessary to make even a few words carry sales value with them. Even if you write your Want Ad a dozen times, get it clear. If you follow these suggestions,

The Want Ad will Do Anything Within Reason

How Federal Expenditures Have Mounted In Late Years

By Theodore Burton.

The attention of the people is now directed more to the question of our national expenditures, by reason of the enactment some two years ago of the emergency revenue act and the necessity of still further legislation to meet the deficit in our revenues. For the first time in our history, we have direct federal taxation omitting those instances where on account of war we are obliged to raise revenues by direct methods.

The annual expenditures of our government have increased enormously, especially since the termination of the Spanish-American war. The total expense of our government from 1890 to the beginning of the Mexican war—a period of over half a century—was only a billion dollars.

The appropriations for the single fiscal year ending June 30th, 1916, were $1,145,692,012. The fifty-first congress, approved March 4th, 1891, appropriated one billion dollars. To the criticism which this evoked, Speaker Thomas B. Reed, in his characteristic manner, replied, "This is a billion dollar country." The people were not satisfied with this answer, and the next congress was overwhelmingly democratic. Within twenty years our annual appropriations have doubled. We now appropriate over a billion dollars each year. Now and then a solitary voice protests, but from all sides comes demands for further appropriations.

We spend more in one day now than we did in one year when our government was first established.

Reasons for Enlarged Expenditures.

This growth in our appropriations is of course partly due to the enlarged area of our national domain, and to the numerous added responsibilities which they impose. The appropriation for our navy during the current year is $149,661,864.88, which is almost exactly ten times the appropriation for the navy in 1888, thirty years ago. The appropriation for our army, for the present year is $161,974,498.87, almost exactly four times the appropriation for our army in 1888. I mention these as instances of the increase in our expenditures, due to the growth of our country and its added importance in international affairs.

Another phase of the increase of national expenditures is the enlarged scope of operations of the federal government. Most of these have produced results entirely commensurate with their cost. As an instance of this, we have the rural free delivery of mail. This is a very useful adjunct of our administrative and social organization. The first experiments along this line were made about twenty years ago, and the appropriations were not very small. In 1903 the total expenditures for rural delivery were about seven and a half million dollars; by 1905 they had reached about ten millions, and in 1909 they amounted to thirty-five million; today we are spending close to fifty million dollars for Federal Activities of Extreme Variety.

I might point out a great number of these instances that show the extreme variety of our federal activities. Some of them are open to criticism, while others are in every way commendable since they tend to promote our prosperity, to protect the public health and increase the enjoyment of life. The latter remains, however, that they involve a great expenditure in expenditures which would not have been considered fifty years or even a generation ago.

For instance, large appropriations were made by the last congress for the present fiscal year for investigations in climatology and evaporation; for the eradication of the pest of crop plants; investigations of methods for wood distillation and for the preservation of timber; analyzing and testing coal, lignites and ores. These are but a few of the hundreds of activities upon which the federal government has embarked during the last generation. I mention these not to criticize the appropriations, but for the purpose of indicating the broadening scope of our financial burdens.

The comparative condition of the national government on the one hand, and the states and municipalities on the other, exercises a great influence on these growing demands of our treasury. The burden of over-taxation and debt is increasing at an alarming rate. The fact that the taxation is direct, and national taxation has hitherto been indirect, and seemingly much less oppressive, makes the body of the people apparently oblivious to the burdens which are called upon to bear. As a result, demands are made on the federal government for projects which otherwise would be undertaken by the states and municipalities.

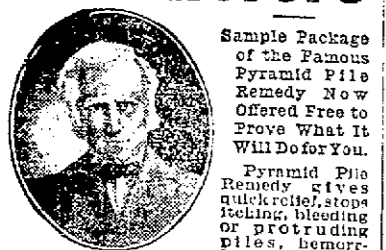

The ideal of the people seem to differ when applied locally. A member of a city council or of a state legislature is held to a close account by his constituents when voting on matters involving the expenditure of money and the consequent increase of the local tax rate. The situation is different with a member of congress. Constituents seem to avoid the efforts of their representatives in securing appropriations, especially when they are to be expended in his home district.

Line's Vanderlandi in the Aegean Sea by a German submarine while bound from Egypt to Lemnos early in September. The Southland had on board about 1,700 men, mostly Americans. A small number of New Zealand troops were also being carried by her. Colonel Linton and staff of Victoria were on the vessel and his death was among the thirty odd killed in the submarine attack. He died of shock and exposure. Although the Southland was badly damaged, she kept about a week to reach the coast, by the aid of soldiers who had volunteered to assist the stokers.

Following is a copy of a special order of the day issued by General Headquarters regarding the torpedoing of the Southland:

"The Commander-in-Chief publishes this plain account of the submarine attack on H. M. S. Southland without any comment except his compliments to the volunteer stokers. The facts, he feels, are best left to speak for themselves. The Southland was struck by torpedo from an enemy submarine at 9:45 a. m. on Sept. 2, being then south of Mudros Bay. A second torpedo just passed astern of the transport a few minutes later. Almost immediately thereafter the explosion the ship listed noticeably to starboard, and also by the head. Both the foreholds were soon awash above the level of the upper deck. The troops on board the 2nd Battalion, Australian Imperial forces, were just about to parade. They fell in just as the ship listed, and awaited the orders to be passed from the boat decks for the required numbers to be sent up without any sign of anxiety to get an early place. A large number of the troops had to stand for nearly two hours on the enclosed promenade deck of what during the first 30 or 40 minutes was believed to be a sinking ship. The first boats on the davits were lowered quickly and successfully, but a considerable delay took place before the boats on board could be got to the davits and lowered, with the assistance of the troops. Two boat-loads, with Colonel Linton and six of the Infantry Brigade Staff, were capsized, in spite of all precautions. Battalion distinguished himself by diving from the deck to prevent a patent raft from drifting away."

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Jan. 12.—Will J. Cleveland of Portville, was in the village for a short time on Tuesday, visiting with relatives here.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran church was entertained on Wednesday afternoon at the church by Messdames Reeder, Gaarder and Krueger. There was a good attendance and an interesting time is reported.

Word was received on Tuesday evening from Stoughton that Hazel Ousgard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ousgard, had died in that city of pneumonia. The family moved from Orfordville to Stoughton several years ago. Nothing has been heard regarding funeral arrangements. H. F. Silverthorn went to Stoughton on Tuesday morning to attend the funeral.

Dr. Forbush made an early trip to Janesville on Wednesday with Alvin Thompson, who entered the hospital there to undergo an operation. George Williams has been commissioned by parties from Oklahoma to purchase several loads of blooded Holstein Friesian cattle. He expects to make the shipment about the twentieth of the month.

Three representatives of the Borden Condensed Milk company were in the village on Wednesday to ascertain the advisability of erecting a plant at Orfordville. In the afternoon they met with a large audience of farmers at the opera house and the details of the matter were thoroughly discussed. It is probable that they will erect a plant here.

It was heard that Ernest Frank has sold his farm to Will Randall of Milton. Mr. Frank will work the farm this season.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA TAKES GREAT INTEREST IN TROOPS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Jan. 12.—Queen Alexandra, mother of King George V, has taken a particular interest in the work of the soldiers and sailors who furnish coffee and sandwiches free to men in uniform at the principal London railway stations. On several occasions the Queen Mother has insisted on taking the customary honor-and-trick with the other voluntary workers at one of another of the stations. The soldiers seldom recognize Her Highness for some time, and she takes especial delight in serving them in uniform and receiving their "Thank you, missus," just as it is given to the other workers in the canteen.

Perhaps the heart of the Queen's customers was a Kentish farmer who looked in at the London Bridge station one foggy night. He was evidently neither a soldier nor sailor and was distinctly not in uniform. But somebody whispered to him that the Queen Mother was serving coffee. He approached one of the other waitresses and asked if she happened to have a little money to the cause, the Queen would give him a cup of coffee with her own hand. Queen Alexandra readily lent him his coffee and then, coming inside the counter, he wrote out a check for $25.

Soon after he took his train for Kent and the next thing heard from him was in the form of a check for $250, being money which he had raised in subscriptions among his neighbors. A fortnight later he appeared in person with $100 more and declared that he was not going to rest until he had brought his total contribution up to $1,000.

ICE CREAM MANUFACTURERS PROTEST EXPRESS CHARGE ON EMPTY CAN RETURN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Jan. 12.—Ice cream manufacturers were today planning to file a protest with the state and interstate commerce commissions against the ice cream express rates.

The ice cream shippers want the specific rate made lower and the rate on returning empty cans reduced from 15 to 10 cents. At a recent meeting in this city shippers and representatives of the express companies and members of the railroad commission were unable to agree on a rate.

GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS HITS POPULAR CHORD

INSPIRES CONFIDENCE OF EVEN FORMER LA FOLLETTE ADHERENTS, ISAYS BOB ACRES.

DISPOSES OF SENATOR

Puts Him on Defensive to Explain Why He Is Not Busy With the Affairs of the United States Senate.

By Bob Acres.

N. B.—This is one of a series of articles on Wisconsin politics written exclusively for the Gazette.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 12.—Well you know of Janette, at least some seven hundred of you personally heard the governor, and the rest of you who read his speech, know that Governor Philipp has sought to do it. What do you think he did not do it? What do you think of it? Do you agree with him that the people have the right of redress in their hands and that they do not need the senator United States senator to tell them what is what or his able co-worker, the democratic junior senator, to line up the "fair minded democrats" of the state to stand for him? Or longer in the state but should return to ashington to attend to the duties they were elected to?

I was in Beloit on Monday evening and heard that the governor was to speak in Janesville. I had an interest in hearing first hand what he would say for himself once he was aroused. I knew it would be something worth while and so persuaded a resident of the town of Janesville, a friend of La Follette through thick and thin, to accompany me, and we came to Janesville and heard the talk. It was great to me to catch the face of my La Follette friend. It was a revelation to him, and if other men of his persuasion were as impressed as he was Philipp did not make his talk in vain.

I never figured that our governor was a speaker that would set the world afire, but I did know that he was a plain, honest, rugged man who told plain facts in an honest and convincing manner. He did that at Janesville and he drove his truths home. There was no bitterness in his address; it was all gospel truth, for I knew whereof he talked and he did not lie.

We went into Milwaukee Tuesday and found several men who had heard the speech, and by the time we reached Milwaukee most of us on the train had read the report in the morning papers. It was the topic of discussion, and from what I could hear it had hit the popular fancy. Why is La Follette in Wisconsin maligning the governor and not in his seat in the United States Senate at Washington to which he was elected at this critical time? That was the question I heard asked and unanswered. One man tried to explain it and was cited the old proposition that when a senator is governor he resented federal interference in state affairs and bitterly opposed the men who dared to talk matters of state wide interest while wearing the robes of a United States senator. Time makes a difference and La Follette has perhaps forgotten, but thank fortune the public has not.

I see by this morning's paper that La Follette is to speak in Janesville next Saturday night. All I can say is "peace be with you." I know what he will say and can almost read his address before he utters it. Let us warn you though he is not the old Bob, he cannot rant and tear up and down the stage. Talk of "God's Patient Poor," but he will avoid national issues as the devil does Holy Water and mark my words for that. He would not explain why he voted for the democratic tariff measures than I would explain why I took part in his election in 1900. However, I might then hang my head in shame.

No, sir, La Follette will not talk national politics, but he will give his audience an "un-understandable" jumble of facts and figures and bitter arraignment of state officials and self-praise that would put a Pompey with a paid gallery to applaud. He will not refer to the desertions of recent years of men whose blood he has sapped and then thrown aside like a sucked orange. He will not relate his treachery to Jim Davidson, to Frances McGovern and a dozen others who dared think for themselves. He will tell how he was cheated out of his nomination at various state conventions back in the nineties, twenty odd years ago, and yet how he succeeded.

He will take all the credit for everything good that has happened in the state, but will not explain how state taxes climbed higher and higher and how his tax eating lobby at Madison even tried to make them climb still higher this past session of the legislature but were blocked by Philipp, who refused to be party to their action. No, indeed, he will not mention these things and I am anxious to find what he will talk about when it comes right down to it.

January 27th the republicans of the state are to gather in state convention at Madison. It promises to be an interesting session and one which will be fraught with excitement, the men going there mean business. They want to name as delegates to the national republican convention in Chicago men who will go there unimpaired to represent Wisconsin as delegates. There is no boys' play about it. It means business. They have the opportunity at that time of really forecasting the national platform by the platform they approve of. Wisconsin is the first state to hold a state convention for this purpose, and there is a rare opportunity for someone to make a real strike. I am told here in Milwaukee that the McGovern republicans will not take part in this convention. Just who these McGovern republicans are is hard to say unless they be the ultra Bull Moose progressives and if so they are a forlorn hope if any remain alive after the last election. Of course no one expects any dyed-in-the-wool La Follette republicans will be present for they are going to try and elect a delegation of men to go to Chicago to vote for Robert La Follette for president. There was a time when this was something to be proud of, but now it is a joke even with the ultra progressives.

La Follette killed all chances he had of a presidential nomination by his speech four years ago at Philadelphia, and now it is simply for Chauncey advertising purposes that he seeks the empty honor of a Wisconsin delegation. When Taft asked for the nomination he telegraphed his agents in Wisconsin not to seek the state delegation, as he did not care to compete for delegations where there was a favorite son, but now it is different. What the republicans of Wisconsin want to do is to send a delegation down to the Chicago convention unpledged and ready to vote for the nomination of the best man available for the republican presidential nomination. Make no mistake on that, and Madison convention keep it in mind to impress on the minds of those who go there to see that it is part of the action of the session.

Farmers Profit by Use of Want Ads.

The question of fresh eggs has been solved by several families in Janesville who read the Gazette Want Ads and grasped the opportunity offered by the following advertiser. Other farmers could sell eggs, butter and produce quickly at or even higher than market prices by telling the public about it through the Gazette Want Ads.

Gazette Printing Co. Janesville, Jan. 7, 1916.
I put an add in the Gazette Dec. 30th, fresh eggs for sale, and received nineteen calls from people wanting eggs. Following is the advertisement:

RELIEF TO THE WAR
PRISONERS IS SOUGHT
BY PEOPLE OF GENEVA

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 13.—A movement has been started in Geneva to make more adequate provision for the welfare of prisoners in detention camps of the various belligerent countries. The present winter is bringing with it increased suffering and hardship to countless thousands of men, and these it is proposed to endeavor to alleviate. It is a well-known fact that there were insufficient preparations in the beginning for dealing with such large numbers of interned men, both soldiers and civilians, as the rapidly became necessary to care for, and as a result living conditions in many detention camps today entail suffering and sickness to a degree realized only by actual observers.

The International Red Cross Committee of Geneva is behind this movement, and headquarters for the conduct of the work have been established at La Petite Prairie, Chambesy, near Geneva. The main object is to succor suffering prisoners of war. It is believed that the admission into civil and military camp of special delegates belonging to neutral countries would be of great assistance in bringing about an improvement of existing conditions, without in any way interfering with the necessary local organization and discipline.
These neutral delegates are to be chosen from the professions, such as doctors, lawyers, etc. They are to make themselves useful in many ways at the camps where they are to have the privilege of free access and sojourning for a specified length of time.
It is felt by the promoters of this idea that inasmuch as each belligerent country has an equal interest in establishing and maintaining a wise and just method of meeting detention camp requirements, and at the same time to mitigate the suffering of the captive and the anxieties of their relatives, that the governments concerned will meet with them on the common ground of humanity and help.
The actual negotiations with the states in question, looking to the carrying of this project into effect, will be undertaken by the International Committee.

GERMANS TAKE UP PEACE
LABORS AT FAMED VILLAGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Bazelles, France, Jan. 12.—In this little village which, in 1871, furnished inspiration for the famous painting,
"The Last Cartridge," the Germans have taken up "peace-time" labors.
They found, greatly to their surprise, that the bones of the dead German and French soldiers of forty years ago still lay, unburied, in a vault in the local cemetery, which was in consequence a veritable catacombs.
The most the French had done was to separate the French from the German skeletons.

The Germans began overhauling the cemetery at once, striving first of all to weed out from the confusion of bones such as were not human. The skeletons of former soldiers were then divided into groups, and buried on the left hand side of the central cemetry building. Fitting and imposing monuments, many were erected above the tardy graves, which today only serve to heighten the contrast between the eventual fate of the German and French soldiers of 1870 and 1871. The French skeletons lie in confusion exactly opposite the German tombstones. About fifty of them have been thrown together in each division or heavy paper tube, and above combs, and mixed in with them are plainly discernible bones of animals—for the most part horses who perished as did their riders.

Something To Build

A Candle Motor

Here is a very interesting and novel form of motor which can be made from two ordinary candles, some small pieces of wood, and a wire. Look at Fig. 1 and you will see just how it should appear when finished. B represents a cardboard or heavy paper tube, just large enough inside to allow a candle to be inserted in each end, C and D. The little wooden bearing A may be made from three pieces cut and nailed together as shown in the sketch. The tube containing the candles is hung on this standard A by means of a wire run through its centre at E.

Fig. 2 and Fig. 3 show how this is constructed. If one end is heavier than the other, light the candle at the heavy end and allow the tallow or wax to melt until that end rises. Now light the other end and presto! The dripings from the

WOMAN'S PAGE

Marrying for Money

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

"I brought over the document for you to sign tonight," said Jacob Townsend, as he seated himself in the tiny parlor where the boarders entertained their callers.

"What paper?" asked his niece, "You know I told you that I would save trouble and all hard feeling among the children if you signed a paper agreeing to make no claim on property left when I am married."

"You share has been decided to you and that will be yours from the time we are married."

"Ortrude reached for the paper and read it."

"It is rather previous signing a document as you think? I am not superstitious, but I prefer not to sign this until I am actually your wife."

"I did not wait until we were married to deed your share of the property," objected Townsend, "You deeded the property to your wife, you said. It should never be your wife the property would not be mine and no harm would be done. I do not choose to sign the paper until after I am your wife."

"Sign yourself, but I cannot understand your objections," Townsend was evidently nettled, but the irritation passed away as he listened to her sparkling repartee and watched the changing expressions on the vivid face.

"I wonder why she would not sign the paper," he thought as he walked home.

"She seemed perfectly satisfied with the settlement I made on her. It is some girl's notion of propriety, no doubt," and the subject passed out of his mind.

When Jacob Townsend told his sons of the approaching marriage, Dudley only said: "I hope you will be happy. His father was relieved. He did not think that he had schooled himself to show no pleasure after his sister imparted the news to him. Then the father told them of his financial arrangements."

"I wanted to be sure that you would have no money troubles after I was gone; this definite provision for her and the division of the property between you three is all provided for in my will and her signature will make any breaking of the will impossible."

"Has she signed the paper?" asked George.

"Well, no. She prefers to wait till she is married," admitted the father, reluctantly.

"Excuse me, but would it not be more businesslike to have all the matter settled before the ceremony?" asked George. "It seems to me that it would be more nearly certain to avoid trouble."

"I did suggest it, but I did not press the matter when I found out how she felt. She will sign the paper as soon as she is married."

"I have decided to let Marian go away to school next year. She has always wanted to do it, and it will be easier to make the adjustments if she must come if she is away for a time."

"Isn't she pretty young to leave home?" She hasn't finished high school," exclaimed Dudley. He was always to everything that affected his little sister.

"Oh, I think not," said the father easily. (To be continued.)

Household Hints

CHEESE DISHES.

Cheese Balls—To two packages of Neufchatel cheese add half teaspoon onion juice and two tablespoons lemon juice. Add dash of ground tabasco if desired. Mold into small balls with butter paddles and serve with lettuce as salad.

Cheese Fondue—Take two tablespoons melted butter, add four tablespoons flour, mix until smooth, add one cup milk or cream, cook until thick. Take from fire, add yolks of three eggs, six tablespoons grated cheese, salt and pepper. Beat whites of eggs stiff and add to other ingredients, then turn into greased dish. Bake twenty minutes in hot oven. Serve at once.

Toasted Cheese—Take slices of bread cut three-fourths inch thick and fresh cheese cut in thin slices and laid on the bread. Place on inverted dripping pan, put in moderate heat and watch closely for a few minutes, or until the cheese with a little spread evenly. Eat hot with a slice of butter or mustard, as preferred.

THE TABLE.

Fried Oysters—Select large oysters Roll in fine cracker crumbs, beat egg, shape, dip in beaten egg, roll again in cracker crumbs and fry on both sides in deep fat (smoking hot), as you would doughnuts. Do not use butter for frying as it burns too quickly and makes oysters soggy.

Beef With Brown Gravy—Take piece of boiling beef, cook until broth is rich enough for soup, then take half an hour. Sprinkle with three tablespoons flour and fry in two tablespoons hot butter (must be fried first). Then pour half pint of hot water over it, bring to a boil, add salt, and let simmer one hour. This makes a very rich gravy and the beef very tender. Add a pinch of sage, a small onion for flavoring, and use the broth for vegetables.

Baked Pork Chops—Six good-sized pork chops, one and one-half cups sliced onions, one cup water, two teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one pint canned tomatoes. Flour chops and fry them till slightly browned. Cover with the sliced onion, pour over the water, put on lid and simmer half an hour. Add tomatoes and bake thirty minutes more in moderate oven.

Creamed Cabbage—Shred small head of cabbage very fine, cook twenty minutes in salt water, adding a pinch of soda. Drain and add half cup sweet milk and two small slices of bacon. Let simmer about fifteen minutes.

Hot Pudding—Soak one-half cup pearl sago in cold water overnight. In the morning add one-half cup sugar and one-half pound dates cut in small pieces, and a pinch of salt. Cook two hours in double boiler. Flavor with vanilla. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Eggless Cake—Cream together a piece of butter size of an egg and one spoon cornstarch. Add one egg and one cup sweet milk alternately with two heaping cups flour into which three teaspoons baking powder has been sifted. Beat of salt and flavor to suit taste. Bake in loaf tin or two jelly tins.

Lemon Crackers—One pint sweet milk, one cup lard, two and one-half cups flour, whites of two eggs, pinch of salt and pinch of soda. Mix stiff dough. Use flour enough to mix stiff dough. Cut in squares.

Lemon Sauce—Stir half cup sugar and two tablespoons cup starch; add one cup boiling water; boil for five minutes, remove from fire, add two teaspoons butter and one and one-half teaspoons lemon juice.

TASKS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE—After cleaning windows, when they are dry, rub them with a cloth slightly moistened with glycerine and they will not sweat.

Mica windows in stoves can be cleaned by soaking in a strong solution of vinegar and water, then rubbing with a soft flannel.

Grease spots can be taken from wall paper by mixing pipe clay or powdered chalk with water, to a paste, spreading it on the spot. Leave till the next day, then brush off and grease goes with it.

Cover a sugar barrel with cretonne or domet. Cover the top also, and attach a small semi-circle of wood covered with same material for a handle to the top. This makes a good receptacle for soiled clothes.

Just before putting in eggs stir a generous pinch of flour into the hot grease. This flour absorbs the moisture and prevents spattering.

When making rice pudding, escalloped potatoes, macaroni or anything which requires a long time, start it to boil on the top of the stove before putting it into the oven. It will bake in half the time and save fuel.

THE SUNDAY DINNER.

Creamed Tomato Soup
Baked Stuffed Pork Celery
Creamed Potatoes Baked Apples
